

SAMUEL GULLY & CO.MILLINERY.*Such a Rush.

As there has been for those felt hats; no such values were ever before offered in North Adams. Yesterday we placed on our counters 2,000 felt hats at ridiculously low prices, today we have left only about 900 hats. Such a record for hat selling has never before been equaled in North Adams, such low prices have never before been known. Read these prices, come and see the hats.

Lot 1. Fine felt hats and shapes, regular prices $1.75 to $2.25. Choice now

Only 25c each.

Lot 2. Very fine felt hats and shapes, regular prices $2 to $3. Choice now

Only 48c each.

We have secured a leading New York milliner for our millinery department; this department has been thoroughly re-organized, goods have been marked down, in some instances prices have been cut in two; feather tips, plumes, birds and wings at immense reductions from regular prices.

See our advertisement on Page 6.

London, Oct. 23.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon summarizes the result of the meeting of the British cabinet yesterday as follows:

"Marchand must be withdrawn from Fashoda immediately. No undertaking or promise will be given to discuss the question raised by France regarding access to the Nile, etc.

"It will be determined then whether the questions raised admit of discussion and under what conditions. Every facility will be afforded to assist Marchand's withdrawal by whichever route selected, but if not withdrawn, there will be no interference with his remaining at Fashoda but reinforcements will not be permitted to reach him.

"He will be treated courteously, as a foreign visitor and be regarded in no other light. Therefore it is left to France to adopt any active measures to precipitate a conflict."

CURIOUS SITUATION.Kansas Soldiers Will Vote in Mid-ocean and May Change Results.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 23.—The members of the First battalion of the 23d Kansas regiment, now on their way to Manila, carried ballots with them and will vote on Kansas officers when midway between Honolulu and Manila. These soldiers live in western Kansas where members of the legislature have been elected by less than 25 majority. Fully 25 members of the house can be chosen or defeated by this mid-ocean vote. The state committee are worried by the possibility of a delay in receiving these returns until after February 1, a month after the legislature meets.

Considering Philippines

Paris, Oct. 23.—The American peace commissioners at their session today will draw up a memorandum on the subject of the Philippines which, it is expected, they will place before the Spanish commission at a joint session on Monday.

Three Killed by Train.

New York, Oct. 23.—Three unknown men were cut to pieces by a train on the New York and New Haven railroad between Larchmont and Mamaroneck last night. The mangled bodies were found this morning. They were evidently walking on the track and killed by the same train.

Strike Declared Off.

Brooklyn, Oct. 23.—The general strike of basters in the shoe factories here, at Rockland, Middlebrook, Stoughton and other towns in southeastern Massachusetts begun six weeks ago, was officially declared off this morning, the union authorizing the strikers to return to work. The strike is virtually a defeat for the strikers and a victory for the Consolidated Lasting Machine company. Business men are rejoicing that the strike is at an end.

Quiet in China.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Admiral Dewey cables that all is quiet at Pekin and no further troubles are anticipated. The Petrel is at Taku and the Boston at Chefoo. The cruiser Nero will be sent to San Francisco.

Eight or Ten Perished.

Rochester, Oct. 23.—A special from Soodus says: "Thursday noon, about five miles northwest of Soodus, the three-masted schooner, St. Peter of Cape Vincent, sank with all on board save one, the captain, who was rescued in an unconscious condition. The schooner showed signs of distress early in the morning as she drifted past Charlotte. A tug put out after her, but after cruising about for four hours returned without getting a glimpse of the distressed vessel. During the forenoon the people at Pultneyville sighted the St. Peter and telegraphed to Soodus for help. A tug started out, but the great seas nearly swamped her, and she was compelled to return to the harbor. Word was sent to Charlotte, and a tug started from there with the lifesaving crew. When within a mile of the St. Peter the crew saw the distressed ship sink. In 10 minutes the tug was cruising about the spot where she went down. The captain was picked up unconscious.

CIVIL SERVICE ORDER.Category of Spoils to be Enlarged Considerably.

Washington, Oct. 23.—It is understood that a presidential order exempting a large number of governmental officials from the operation of the civil service rules will be promulgated, probably shortly before Thanksgiving day. The order is one which has been in contemplation for many months, having been deferred from time to time owing to pressure of war business. As at present determined upon the order will affect upwards of 8000 places. It will include deputy collectors of internal revenue who are authorized by law to become acting collectors actually serving in that capacity. There are about 2000 of these deputies.

The largest class affected is the corps of examining surgeons of the pension bureau, of whom there are in all over 4100. Over 3000 of these surgeons are stated at the civil service commission's office never to have been classified under the civil service law. The order will clear the misapprehension as to the actual status of the whole corps and place them all on a par.

About 5000 of the marshals heretofore reported as classified, but concerning whose status there has been some doubt, because of their being in the judicial branches of the service, are expected to be placed in the exempt class. There are other scattering positions, including some of a fiduciary and confidential character, which will aggregate possibly several hundred. This is the scope of the order as now outlined in official quarters but it is subject to further modification before being finally passed upon.

The News of Hometown.

Boston, Oct. 23.—In the superior court yesterday, Robert Walker was sentenced to not more than five nor less than three years in state prison for passing a worthless check in this city in 1895. Walker had just finished a sentence in Sing Sing of four years, with time off for good behavior, for a similar offence. At the annual convocation of the grand commandery of Knights Templars of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the following were elected as officers: Commander, G. L. Shipley, Providence; deputy, H. P. Morse, Roxbury; grandissimo, Winthrop Messenger, Melrose; captain general, G. E. Hilton, Lynn; prelate, Rev. Charles A. Morgan, Haverhill; senior warden, G. H. Kenyon, Providence; junior warden, F. C. Hersey, Boston; treasurer, J. H. Upham, Dorchester; recorder, B. W. Rowell of Lynn. A verdict of $5000 against the Dorchester Gas company was rendered yesterday in a peculiar action of tort. W. H. Black, the plaintiff, was seriously burned by a brown liquid which issued from a jet he was attempting to light at his home last March, and so sued to recover for his injuries.

To the music of a dozen bands and by the light of flaring torches, the Ancient Order of United Workmen, some 5000 strong, marched through the streets of Boston last night in celebration of the 30th anniversary of the organization.

Sentence of Mere Boys. St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 23.—In the criminal court yesterday Herbert Donovan, Alonzo Arterburn, Charles Cook, James Hathaway and William Hathaway were sentenced to the penitentiary for 10 years for robbing a Burlington passenger train near St. Joe Aug. 11. The robbers are mere boys and of good families. On this account the railroad and express officials consented to the assessment of the minimum fine upon their plea of guilt.

The robbery was successfully executed, but no booty was obtained. After throwing the safe, containing a large amount of money, from the train, the boys became frightened and ran away without opening it. They proceeded to their homes in this city, and next day James Hathaway made a confession.

Smelling Salts in His Eyes. Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 23.—The Broderick-Connelly fight last night, as far as it went, was a terrific battle. For the first four rounds the men fought like demons, with honors even. Broderick displayed rare science in avoiding his opponent's punches. In the fifth Broderick beat Connelly's face raw with a series of straight left and right hooks. In the sixth Connelly scored a hard left on Broderick's chin which staggered the Yonkers man; and then he followed it up with two hard swings, bringing Tom to the boards. By clinching Broderick stayed the round out.

The seventh was all Connelly's, and Broderick was a trifle wobbly from the effects of the punishment he had sustained. In the eighth and ninth, however, Broderick freshened, and sailed in and fought Connelly to a standstill. During the round Connelly fouled his man time and time again in an endeavor to turn the tide in his favor. When the men went to their corners it looked like Broderick to 10 to one. Immediately before the bell Broderick's second accidentally threw smelling salts into Tom's eyes. Broderick, however, was unable to see and was writhing with pain. It was then that the referee gave the decision to Connelly.

4.30.NEW FRENCH CABINET*President to be Informed This Afternoon of Formation of New Cabinet.

Paris, Oct. 23.—M. Dupeux has secured the support of M. Ribot, Delcasse and Leygues and it is believed he will officially inform the president this afternoon that he is prepared to form a cabinet.

Thanksgiving Named.

Washington, Oct. 23.—After the cabinet meeting this morning President McKinley issued a proclamation announcing Thursday, Nov. 24, as Thanksgiving day. It says that "in few years has our history afforded us such cause for thanksgiving.

"The approaching November brings to mind the custom of our ancestors, hallowed by time and rooted in our most sacred traditions, of giving thanks to Almighty God for all the blessings he has vouchsafed us during the past year.

"We have been blessed by abundant harvests, our trade and commerce have been wonderfully increased; our public credit has been improved and strengthened; all sections of our common country have been brought together and knitted into closer bonds of national purpose and united.

"Skies have been for a time darkened by the cloud of war, but as we were compelled to take up the sword in the cause of humanity, we are permitted to rejoice that the conflict has been so brief and the losses we have had to mourn, though grievous and important, have been so few, considering the great results accomplished, as to inspire us with gratitude and praise to the Lord of Hosts.

"We may laud and magnify His holy name that the cessation of hostilities came so soon as to avert on both sides the countless sorrows and disasters that attend a protracted war."

Big Peace Jubilee.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—The streets were again filled this morning to witness the last day of the great Peace Jubilee. Today's procession was purely of civic character. The exercises of the day opened with the rededication of Independence hall. Governor Hastings presided and 3,000 school children sang.

Bay State Arrives.

Chatham, Mass., Oct. 23.—The hospital ship Bay State bound from Porto Rico for Boston with the sick men of the Sixth Massachusetts was sighted here at 8 o'clock this morning. It will reach Boston at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Highland Light, Mass., Oct. 23.—The Bay State passed here at 11 o'clock signalling that they were 123 on board, 21 being seriously ill, requiring quinine. The crew are also sick and unable to pass quarantine.

Important Decision.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The Illinois supreme court decided that the city council may insist on compensation for railroad franchises. This decision has a wide-sweeping significance in matter of grants, because it establishes the right of such compensation without limitation.

Indicted For Murder.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Cordelia Bodkin has been indicted for the murder of Mrs. John P. Dunning of Dover, Del. The jury at a prolonged session voted to indict her.

A Good Winning.

London, Oct. 23.—The Prince of Wales' filly Nonesuch, with Tod Sloane as mount, won the Old Cambridgehire handicap and a purse of 500 sovereigns today.

BRIDE IN SECLUSIONSecret Marriage of Miss Larkin of Bennington Has Sad End.*HER HUSBAND MUCH MARRIED*Mother of the Young Lady Ferrets Out Another Wife of Thomas Lamm and the Daughter Returns to Maternal Roof.

Miss M. Jennie Larkin of Bennington Center was secretly married at Williamstown on October 11 to a man who passed under the name of Thomas Lamm. She was a graduate of an Albany business college, and for some time had been employed as stenographer and typewriter for a leading law firm in Bennington. Up to the time of the announcement of her marriage to Mr. Lamm, it was supposed that she was to marry an estimable and leading young lawyer in Bennington county.

Mr. Lamm represented that he was a man of property, and told plausible stories. The bride's mother, however, was suspicious and investigated. She found that the man had two wives from whom he had not been legally divorced. The mother went to Springfield where her daughter was, her husband being away from home. She took her back to her home in Bennington, where the bride of two weeks is now in seclusion.

MR. PARKER WILLINGTo Follow the Desires of the Republican Club. Other Political Doings.

As reported briefly yesterday, Mr. Parker at the meeting of the republican club Wednesday evening, announced in answer to the committee which carried to him the will of the club, that he was ready to do whatever the club desired in the matter, and that if that organization wished to put him in the field, he would not refuse the nomination. Mayoralty talk has been more lively than for some time on the streets today, and a number of new schemes have been spoken of. The mention of Sheriff Prink's name as a possibility has caused some discussion, and is received by the sheriff himself as a very humorous proposition, but a very imaginary possibility.

There was a meeting of a number of French workers last evening, to discuss the formation of a French republican club. The executive committee of the French taxpayers association also met last evening. The republican city committee met last evening and transacted routine business.

Funeral of James R. Pickett.

The funeral of James R. Pickett was held this morning at 10.30 o'clock at the house at the corner of Temple and Elm streets in Adams. There was a large attendance, 200 members of the societies and organizations of which he was a member being present. Rev. W. W. Carr conducted the services, and a mixed quartet sang. The body was taken to the 12.24 train, to be taken to Worcester, N. Y., where it will be buried tomorrow morning. Delegations from the following societies were in the procession: Foresters of America, United Workmen, Odd Fellows, Grand Army and associates, and Alert hose company.

The body was accompanied to Worcester by T. P. Welch and Charles Walker of the Alerts, O. G. Hoorn and P. C. Mattison of the Foresters, and William O'Brien of the Odd Fellows. The floral tributes were many and handsome. From the Foresters were a heart and star, from the United Workmen and Odd Fellows, pillows, from the Alerts a floral arrangement, from the Grand Army a chrysanthemum wreath, and wreaths from the Sons of St. George and Foresters.

Will Start For Cuba Soon.

Major Whipple, who has been in Springfield with the officers of the Second regiment this week, drove to this city from Adams this afternoon. The major expects to receive word almost any time after Sunday that the party with which he is to go to Cuba to bring back the bodies of the Western Massachusetts soldiers buried there, is ready to go. The major will have care of bringing the bodies of all the soldiers from Berkshire.

Captured a Bicycle.

Some time ago a wheel belonging to a son of Superintendent Hall was stolen from in front of his house on Elmwood avenue. This morning Mr. Hall and his son saw a boy riding a wheel on the street which looked like the one that was stolen, and they followed the rider and took him in charge. The boy claimed he hired the wheel, but it looked so much like the one that was stolen that it was taken to the police station to await investigations by the police.

Will Be Transferred.

Word received by his family from Inspector Arthur M. Tinker, who was wounded in the Minnesota Indian fight, says that he is rapidly recovering from his wounds. He writes that he will go to the Boston agency in Dakota as soon as he is able. This is one of the best of the Indian agencies.

The Owner Got the Apples—Illustrated
Lecture Tonight—May Give a Ball—The State Road.

THE STATE ROAD

The state road will soon be completed and all will regret to know that it will not extend to the corner of Main and Water streets, as they had hoped it would. It will lack about 200 feet of reaching that point. The piece built this year will be 2,800 feet long and will make two miles of state road in this town. This year's work has been quite expensive. One thousand feet of side drains have been laid and 400 feet of telford, the latter being cobble stones used for a base where there was clay and soft bottom. The cuts have not supplied all the filling necessary and consequently considerable filling material has had to be drawn further than would otherwise have been the case. It is these things that have used up the appropriation of $2,100 a little short of the point that it was hoped would be reached. The placing of the first course of stone will be nearly or quite completed this week and then the trap rock will have to be put on and rolled down. Engineer Wood, who is in charge of the work, says if the weather is not too unfavorable the road will be finished by November 5. Considerable extra work has been made by people driving on the unfinished road. The work was begun September 2.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

The illustrated lecture on "The Passion Play" will be given in Houghton hall this evening by Professor Turner. The lecture and the views will give a vivid idea of the play as produced by the peasants of Germany at Oberammergau, Bavaria, every 10 years with but few exceptions since 1680, representing the principal events in Christ's life during the week which ended with his crucifixion, burial and resurrection. It will be a very interesting and instructive lecture and worthy of a good attendance. At the close of the lecture a program of miscellaneous views will be given. The price of admission is 25 cents.

THE OWNER GOT THE APPLES.

J. D. Pattison has a tree which bore some fine apples and he made up his mind a day or two ago that it was time to pick them. He went out to the tree and found that somebody had got ahead of him so far as the picking was concerned. The apples were picked and in a bran sack that would hold about a barrel, and Mr. Pattison has no doubt that the picker was waiting for darkness to cover his movements when they were to be taken away. Mr. Pattison very properly took the apples to his house and will be glad to restore the sack to the owner if he will make himself known.

MAY GIVE A BALL.

The plumbers and steam fitters are talking of giving a ball. They first thought they would have it about Thanksgiving time, but as the Porters' orchestra benefit comes November 11 and George Williams is to give a ball Thanksgiving night, they will probably wait till toward Christmas if they conclude to have one. The matter is at present in charge of Ed. Jerome and C. U. Whelden, who say that if the plumbers put their shoulders to the wheel a ball will be given which will be second to no event of the kind in this town.

Prof. J. W. Lawrence left town Thursday for Holy Springs, Miss., in company with Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Foster, Jr., who came from Lawrence, W. A. Blair, taking a chimney for Mrs. Lucy Foster Thursday and narrowly escaped being blown off the roof by a sudden and powerful gust. The social club, which has rooms over Hall's store, is rehearsing the play "Uncle Josh," which will be given in the near future. The members of the Citizens' band and those of the former cornet band met in Houghton hall Thursday evening to consider the question of consolidation, which has been under discussion for some time. It is believed that a step would give the town a better band than it has ever had. Channing Tilly and family will return to Boston Monday. Miss Van Schoonhoven will return to her home in Troy next Thursday. Dr. John Denison and his son, who are hunting in Maine, wrote a few inches deep and covered with a crust which seriously interfered with their sport. Considerable work is being done on Dr. Denison's land. Drains will be laid each side of the driveway, which will thus be rendered perfectly dry. The foundation for an addition to the barn is completed and the carpenter work will begin at once. Dr. Denison is preparing to build a residence and will probably do so next season. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Roberts of Tarrytown are visiting his brothers, R. H. and R. T. Roberts, for a few days. They are on their wedding tour. Daily Bros. have improved their laundry by putting in a rear window. The football game between Williams and Tarrytown on Weston field Saturday afternoon will be called at 3 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hoyt are making a short visit in Albany. Nine names were added to the voters' list at the session held by the registrars in South Williamstown the other evening. It is believed that nearly 100 names will be added this fall. Crosby Doughty is in New York for a few days. Prof. R. A. Rice has been selected to represent Williamstown at the annual convention of the association of New England colleges, which will be held at Burlington, Vt., November 3 and 4. Professor Rice was formerly a professor in the university of Vermont. Rev. Dr. Vincent of the Union Theological seminary, who was to preach in the college chapel Sunday, has canceled his engagement, and Rev. Dr. Hincks of Andover seminary will occupy the pulpit instead. S. M. Sayford of Newton spoke in behalf of the religious interests of the college in alumni hall Thursday night.

Hon. Obed Hall of Stamford, whose death was reported Thursday, was well known by many in this town, where he had been more or less interested in real estate for several years, and where he frequently visited his son, A. E. Hall. All who knew him respected him highly and were very sorry to learn of his death.

E. H. Graves, who had been spending a few weeks with his son, H. M. Graves, returned Wednesday to his home in South Framingham.

Lindley Brock, planing mill at the station will be disposed of Saturday by mortgagee's sale.
B. H. Sherman has the contract to place steam heating apparatus in the Riverside hotel and will begin the work next week. He will also add 500 feet to the radiator in Professor Morton's house. The job in C. S. Cole's house, occupied by H. H. Heap, in which steam heat is being placed, will be finished this week.

The concert and dance for the benefit of Porter's orchestra will be given in the opera house Friday night, November 11.

Amos Messer has bought a Rambler wheel, '09 model, of Norman Ransford.

Karl Wells and Fred Sherman will have charge of the magic lantern exhibition to be given this evening at the home of B. H. Sherman.

E. D. Noel and Fred Foster have erected a low fence around the yard in front of the station school house to keep people from crossing the ground in taking a short cut between Col. avenue and Hall street.

Edward Fitzgerald, who mysteriously left his home in this town eight years ago and had not since been heard from, has written to his folks informing them that he is located in Castwood, Dakota, and is well.

The Fraterniternian debating society of the high school has elected these officers: President, Nelson Dale; vice president, Terrance Quinn; secretary, Miss Mollie Neely; treasurer, Mr. Katherine Sherman; executive committee, Nelson Dale, Stewart Sherman, Fairhope Burdick, Miss Julia Prind and Benjamin Hogan.

A Boy's Choice.
A German boy was reading a book and he said to himself: "Now, this will never do. I got too much excited over it. I can't study so well after it. So here goes!" And he flung the book into the river. He was Fichte, the German philosopher.—Woman's Journal.

Morning Meditation.
Do I mean to be good today, today?
Do I mean to be kind and true?
Do I mean to behave in a gracious way
And put good cheer in the words I say
And love in the deeds I do?

Am I going to be as the sun and shine,
And the grace of a rose in bloom?
Am I going to smile with hope divine
And sing my prayers to the skies broad shrine,
Or grope in a dusty tomb?

With the golden levers of life and light
Shall I lift the hearts of men?
Oh, I shall know if I use them right!
For, though it shall try my soul, tonight
I shall speak these lines again.

MRS. COL. CLITHEROE

"Mrs. Colonel Clitheroe." And with the utterance of those words the brown eyes seemed to laugh at their own reflection in the mirror, and as the pretty creature looked at her reflection she showed the perfect teeth. "Do I look it, John? Do I? For I am intensely anxious as to the effect which I shall produce on your friends and neighbors."

The gray haired, handsome husband shook his head, with a smile.
"Harris, I am afraid, Rose. A casual observer would be more likely to think you were a young lady spending the holidays with her grandfather. Fortunately, however, the residents in these parts know who you are. I expect they will muster pretty strong at church this morning to get a good seat."

Rose Clitheroe took her husband's arm as they passed through the gateway of the priory. The Colonel had inherited the property from an uncle, not long before his marriage.
"It looks more matronly to take your arm, John," she said, laughing. But then her mood changed, and she looked grave, adding:

"I do really feel nervous. I don't want these people who have known you for so long to say I am too young and too beautiful and altogether unworthy to be your wife. Do you think they will be prejudiced against me by my appearance? I chose a bunnet and this long seakirt coat because they make me older than a hat and jacket."

It was rather a romantic little story, as things go in these prosaic times, that story of how Rose Dyrart became Mrs. Colonel Clitheroe when she was 18 and he was 35. Rose declared that she had been in love with him all her life. Certainly at 2 years old she had been in the habit of assuring him, "Harris, I'll marry you when she's big," whereupon he always answered, "All right, little woman; I'll wait for you."

The child's passionate devotion to the handsome officer was quite an amusement to her parents. But when his regiment was ordered off to India, and they saw the little face grow white and thin and heard her beautiful voice sob, they knew no longer. Even after she ceased to cry for "Harris's colonel," she never forgot him.

The pretty baby had grown to a tall, slim girl of 18 when these two friends met again. By that time Rose Dyrart was a pupil at a small and select boarding school in the environs of Paris, and on one of the frequent visits which her father and mother paid to their darling they came by chance across Colonel Clitheroe, who also was spending some time in the city.

"How is Harris? Has he forgotten me?" were among his first questions.

Mrs. Dyrart laughed.
"Rose is at school at Neuilly. Come with us this afternoon and then judge for yourself whether you have been forgotten."

The girl had not grown stiff and shy. She was immensely delighted to see her friend again, and she told him so. He asked her to come to his house, and he reminded her of how she would drag a footstool across the room, and by its aid climb to his knee and bury her small hands with his hair, on the pretext of making him "nice and tidy."

"I have grown gray since those days," he said, with a half sigh. Whereupon Miss Rose declared that she liked gray hair best.

Rose seemed to please the other. They sat in a moment on each other's memory. They appeared to divine each other's thoughts.

"I shall come again," said Colonel Clitheroe when the visitors' hour was over and study must begin. "See that you and I shall be excellent friends, as you were 11 years ago."

However, he made no second visit to the pensionnat at Neuilly-sur-Seine. His old love's illness recalled him, and he returned to his home in London. He was a young man of 21, and he was about to be introduced into society before she had the pleasure of meeting her colonel again.

This girl's face was not strictly beautiful, but it was a charming face. She was immensely admired, both by men and women. And there must be something lovable as well as lovely in a young lady of 17 when the force of her own sex repels sincere admirers for her and can praise her wholeheartedly.

"She will certainly marry young," said elderly people, but it never occurred to any of them to suppose that this sunny faced Rose Dyrart would refuse three eligible men simply because she loved a middle-aged colonel.

Like many other parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dyrart seemed to regard their daughter as little more than a child. They scarcely realized that she viewed her differently.

"Of course, like other girls, Rose must go into society," they said, "but we hope it may be years and years before we have to part with her."

And they were quite delighted that she should refuse her first three offers of marriage.

It was in the spring and just before her eighteenth birthday that the Dyrarts left their pretty Sussex house for a furnished house in London place, which they had hired for the season at a somewhat exorbitant rent.

To the great joy of Rose, Colonel Clitheroe was one of the first callers. He also was in town for two or three months, having during the previous year buried his old uncle and inherited the property.

"My dear fellow," said Mr. Dyrart to him, with a friendly air, "I am not so long standing, but I really ought not to remain unmarried. Try to remember that you are depriving some woman of an excellent house and a still more excellent husband. A man in the prime of life—well off, and looking, retired from the army—where lies the hindrance?"

Simply in this, replied the colonel, "I have never been in love, and I am not afraid to make my choice. I am not the age for the tender passion. You see, there is no 'three year system' in matrimony. It has to be all done up to date."

A WORCESTER CHEMIST

E. A. Brewer, Well Known in That City is Surprised at the Sales of Vinol.

Our Mr. C. C. Isbell, who is so Greatly Interested in this New
Tonic Reconstructor, Says
There is No Reason to Wonder.

A Remedy That is So Genuine and Does So Much Good Naturally Commands Enormous Sales.

"I have a letter here," said Mr. C. C. Isbell from Mr. Brewer of Worcester. Mr. Brewer is a member of the firm of Brewer & Co., who undoubtedly conduct the largest drug store in that city. He writes Chester Kent & Co., a letter in regard to Vinol, which will show that he is rather surprised at the sales which are being made by this wonderful medicine. Here is the way he writes:

"Gentlemen:—It gives me pleasure to say that we hear from our customers many words of praise for Vinol. In pushing the sale of Vinol, with other remedies intended for a similar use, we can say that we have never had before a medicine that had so large a sale."

"During last month we sold more than a gross of Vinol. Notwithstanding the fact that it contains a large percentage of the curative principles of the cod's liver, it is easily taken and always retained by the most delicate person. You may rest assured that it has a prominent place in my store and it is one of the most ready sellers we have on the shelf. Yours very truly,

E. A. BREWER.
"There is a man," said Mr. Isbell, "who looks upon Vinol from two different ways. First as a benefactor to man in general, and second as an important remedy for him to handle."

"It is not to be wondered at that he should feel this way, for I myself know the pleasure that there is in selling anything that is bound to do such an awful lot of good as Vinol will. Then look at it from a purely commercial standpoint there is no druggist who conducts a first-class store but finds it greatly to his advantage to handle a medicine that always gives satisfaction, and one that is so scientific in its particular, like Vinol is. The handling of such goods is bound to attract the very best people to the man's store, but I will give Mr. Brewer and other chemists, who have written us extensively in regard to Vinol, credit for thinking more of the value of the remedy from a scientific standpoint than from a more worldly view of its being a good seller."

time will come when, of your own free will, you will go away from me." Rose shook her head.

"I can't think so, mother. However, let us talk of some more interesting subject of my being present, for instance, you and I, colonel, making my courtesy and kissing the hand of royalty. I hope I shan't turn awkward and shy at the last moment. I ought not, for as a little girl, with a countenance in place of a train, I have practiced my manners over and over again."

"No, I scarcely think you will be shy," said Colonel Clitheroe. "Besides the moment makes me nervous, they say. So, of course, it makes the woman."

The important day came. Rose Dyrart was simply yet elegantly dressed, and her fresh young face won its fair share of notice as she waited among the crowd of debutantes.

Then followed six weeks of gayety—concerts, operas, dances, garden parties, riding in the Row. Nevertheless the girl was glad when her father decided to return to the country to his old manor.

Every day seemed beautiful and endeared by absence. The trees had exchanged their first freshness of tender green for the ripeness of summer beauty. The lawns and bluebells were over and done with, but the foliage of the woods seemed lovely by contrast with Hyde park.

Colonel Clitheroe was to be one of the after season guests at the Dyrart country house. He followed them within a fortnight of the departure from Eaton place.

Was anything troubling him? Was he ill? Those were the questions they asked him, for he did not seem so cheerful as usual, and he was apt to drop into fits of musing, so that even the voice of Rose made him start as one does who returns suddenly from the land of dreams to reality.

The fact was that he had promised to accept a commission which was distasteful to him.

"Colonel," a bright faced guardsman had said to him one day, "I'll tell you a secret. I am in love with Rose Dyrart, and I shall never be for another girl. Now, you and my father were boys together, and you are the oldest friend I possess in all the world. Say a good word for me, will you? She thinks you infallible upon every point. She has told me herself that she loves you."

Colonel Clitheroe worked vigorously at a tuft of grass with the toe of his boot for some moments before answering.

"Have you spoken for yourself?" he suddenly inquired.

"Not in plain words. Every time I try and get round to the point there seems a difficulty. But I would try my luck again and again if I thought I might win Rose in the end. Speak up for me, won't you, colonel?"

"If a favorable moment comes. But I don't see what my recommendation can do for you."

"Harris," she knew you all her life, and doesn't she think you worth any number of young fellows put together?" said Rose.

"The chief subject of conversation when we dance or when we sit out upon the lawn is the perfection of Colonel Clitheroe and I've had to tell her all I could think of about you when the moment was out in India. After exhaustive facts I try fiction, saying that it is the only way to win a smile." And the young fellow laughed.

For the first time a striking iron mentioned the subject of young Rawdon's desire and from speaking up for his many excellent qualities. He liked much better to talk over "dear old times," as Rose called her golden days of childhood.

"I must have been a positive nuisance to you, wasn't I, colonel? she asked one day as they passed close by the terrace walk while waiting the summons to breakfast. "I know I was always running after you, yet you never seemed cross and bored."

"I should think not, indeed," and the colonel laughed. "Your advances were so flattering. I could not rook on up the time you assured me your intention to marry me when you grew big enough. Ah, child," and now a slight falter in the smile. "I suppose one of those days I shall stand among your wedding guests—and I don't think I shall enjoy that ceremony one bit."

"You will never be a guest," and now Rose colored, yet held out her hand as bravely as when she was a child. "Colonel, I am going to do something dreadful, I suppose. Please never tell any one, and please say 'no' if you would rather give that answer. But I am big enough now, and I will say exactly what I did when I was 9 years old—I'll marry you, or I shall certainly never marry any one."

And in that moment Colonel Clitheroe knew that, though his hair was plentifully streaked with gray, and though his face had lines on it which nothing but the passage of years can trace, he loved Rose Dyrart as a man loves only once in a lifetime.

It was only when he told Mr. and Mrs. Dyrart of his good fortune that he remembered Harry Rawdon's commission.

"Never mind," said Rose. "Your recommitment of him as a husband would not have been of the slightest use. I have loved you first and last and always—ever since I was 2."—Household Words.

BUSY MEN.

Should Weigh This Question

Citizen's Experience.

Success in business is often handicapped. A man may have plenty of capital. May have energy in abundance. May know his business well. And still success comes slowly. It's a case of too great a burden. That back can't carry it all. A lame or an aching back is a handicap. Drive the ache away and make work a pleasure. Learn what backache means. Learn that the backache is kidney ache. Learn how to shake it off. Read how a North Adams citizen did it.

"I am a mason by trade and I think my occupation is particularly hard on the back," says Mr. H. T. Redrew, 52 Center street. "I get warm and exposed to the wind while perspiring. My work compels me to bend forward at the same time and strain the loins so I do not wonder that from time to time for several years I had attacks of backache that made it agonizing to stoop. I decided to try them and procuring a box at Burlington & Darby's commenced their use. I was well rewarded for making the trial because almost immediately I was relieved and I stopped taking them before the box was finished as I had no further need for them, there being no more urinary trouble, backache or lameness. An acquaintance was complaining to me of his back. I gave him what Doan's Kidney Pills I had left. He stated to me that they had cured him."

Why Not Advertise?

In the legitimate extension of advertising patronage to local newspapers there is often a lack of public spirit on the part of some manufacturers, wholesale merchants and others. Without newspapers a city or town would be unworthy a place on the map. Everybody knows that. There is no business in a town that would not in some shape receive benefit from advertising—or at least it would be an incidental way of advertising the town. Yet many of those who expect the newspaper to bear this burden for their own or the general welfare, never reinforce the journalistic news of war to the extent of a nickel per annum. We consider that simply as a matter of local pride, every business should advertise regularly; at all events, to a certain extent, and do it as a general principle, just as every live business man carries insurance.—Newspaperdom.

CHAPMAN FIBBLES

The following is taken from the Winsted Evening Citizen of Winsted Conn. The couple arrived in this town Thursday. The home of William A. Chapman No. 149 Meadow street was the scene of a very pretty wedding at a o'clock this afternoon the contracting parties being Burton E. Peckham of Adams Mass. and Miss Catherine P. Adams daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Chapman. The house was handsomely decorated with palms ferns potted plants cut flowers and the national colors in the form of streamers and beautiful draperies. The ceremony took place in the large sitting room and the entire side of the room in front of which the bride couple stood was banked with laurel palms begonia and maiden hair ferns all beautifully draped with white satin ribbons. There was no best man but the bride was attended by two maids of honor being her sister Miss Anna S. Chapman and Miss Jennie Carrier. While Elmer Berg sweetly rendered the wedding march Penelope's maid party approached from the hall-way passing between the four pages Mabel Deming Grace Hale George Chapman and William Burton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. N. M. Callahan using a ring in connection with the Congregational service. After the dominus had tied the nuptial knot a reception was held and the guests were shown the array of beautiful numerous and costly presents of which Mr. and Mrs. Peckham were the recipients. One present which was the cause of much merriment was a miniature wash boiler from a good Baptist brother. A wedding breakfast was served and as the friends passed into the dining hall they were greeted with a table heavily laden with delicacies. The happy couple left on the 4:54 east bound train for Hartford for a short wedding tour.

TO TAKE A POST GRADUATE COURSE

Michael R. Powers who has been playing baseball with the Louisville since last June has returned home. He is looking well and was greeted by his many friends and complimented for his excellent showing in the National League. He played 33 games and had but two errors. When catching no bases were stolen. He had the best batting average of any catcher in the league. His average was over .400. He has signed with the same team for next season. Mr. Powers will return to Notre Dame University, Indiana, Monday. He graduated there last spring and will take a post graduate course. He is studying medicine and will enter Columbia college next fall.

FOOTBALL SATURDAY

There will be a football game at Forest park in this town Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Crescents will play the Williamstown high school. There will be no charge to see the game and everyone is invited to attend. A collection will be taken to defray the car expenses of the visitors. The Williamstown eleven are said to be a fine team and the game no doubt will be an exciting one. The Crescents will have the same team as lined up last Saturday.

BAZAAR TO CONTINUE

The Notre Dame October bazaar which opened in the old French church last Friday evening and closed Saturday night will be resumed this evening. The entertainment will consist of a violin selection by Thomas Palmer a song by Edwin Rice and selections by quartet. Saturday evening an entertainment will be given by a magician. Both evenings refreshments will be served and a pleasant time is assured. The proceeds of the bazaar are for the new parochial school and convent fund. Everybody is invited.

ROBERT EMMET BAZAAR

The attendance at the Emmet bazaar in the opera house Thursday evening was good. The concert given by local talent was well rendered and the participants were given generous applause. The piano accompaniments were played by Prof. M. O. Larkin on the Conover piano. The sparring exhibition by Weir brothers was again thoroughly appreciated. Robert the older of the boys had the better of the argument though there was no prize awarded or his little brother says the result would be different. This evening a dance will be held. Music will be by the Rooster orchestra.

BET BY A HOG

Mr. Atkinson a butcher in the employ of William Thompson had the thumb of his left hand badly injured Wednesday. He was butchering a hog and had established him and was holding him by the snout when the dying animal struggled to get up and Mr. Atkinson slipped his hand. His hand went into the hog's mouth and the animal bit him. One of the tusks pierced the thumb into the bone. The flesh was cut in three places and the wounds are very painful.

A GOOD ATTRACTION

A good attraction has been booked for the opera house next Tuesday evening. It will be by John W. Isham octoroons in a new musical fancy entitled "A Tenderloin Coon". Many specialties are introduced in the play and the company is made up of good singers comedians and dancers. The company has received good press notices from leading papers and no doubt the attraction will be a great success. Tickets will be on sale at Mole's drug store.

Rev. Nell Andrews of Shelburne Falls was the guest of Rev. H. B. Foskett Thursday. Corporal William Hodecker of Company M is improving steadily. He was feeling quite well Thursday.

FROST

AFTER BAFFLING TWO NOTED MANCHESTER PHYSICIANS.

Mrs. E. Oviatt, 5 Valley street wife of Mr. Almon Oviatt, yard conductor for the Boston and Maine railroad, Manchester, N. H. says:

I think Dr. T. J. St. John's Rheumatism Cure is a wonderful medical discovery. It has cured me of rheumatism and my case has baffled two of Manchester's leading physicians. One of them family physician treated me steadily for over a year and was unable to give me the least bit of relief. My rheumatism started over three years ago. I was taken with hard backaches. The pains spread all over my body until it seemed as if every muscle in my body ached. Terrible shooting pains ran through my spine. I could not rest. Nothing could I walk about the house or do any work. I have used numerous liniments and so-called rheumatism cures including ten bottles of a well known homeopathic remedy. These failed to relieve me as did two physicians whom I gave four trials. After all these had failed I thought that a cure was impossible.

I grew steadily worse and was confined to my bed when I started taking Dr. T. J. St. John's Rheumatism Cure. A few doses of this wonderful medicine brought me sleep. After one bottle had been taken I was so much better that I could get up and walk about the house. I have not taken several bottles and am well and strong as I was years ago. I am sure that Dr. T. J. St. John's Rheumatism Cure saved my life and I think it is the most wonderful remedy in the world.

THE PARTY IS UNITED.

It should be a matter of satisfaction to every loyal republican in North Adams that the party is uniting. The party is stronger and more solidified today in this city than in recent years. It is this fall to present a solid front to the common enemy and roll up the largest majority in its history. The efforts of those to whose interests are quarrels and factional splits will avail nothing. The party will resent any effort to disrupt it.

The republicans have a very large majority in the city. The vote of the city is so largely republican that this very strength has been its weakness. It has promoted internal dissensions. If the party were in a small majority and party fights in the city very close republicans would have no temptation to split. They would realize the vital necessity of being united and solid.

Contests within the party are well and good. They should be encouraged because in these contests if carried on without bitterness and on a high plane the party grows strong. But the convention should end the contests. The decision of fair and honorable conventions, and republicans should countenance no other kind, should be final, and loyal republicans should abide by it.

Republicans are united, and notice is served on all opposition candidates to expect an adverse majority in this city larger than ever before.

RAILWAYS MUST COMPETE.

The supreme court has decided that railway companies cannot enter into a legal combination to control traffic or to fix carrying charges on freight and passenger business either local or interstate. The decision wipes out of existence the Joint Traffic Association and abolishes all agreements that were entered into by and between the parties to the original compact of the association.

It is a far-reaching decision, affecting no fewer than 27 great railway corporations and touching the business of all the trunk lines east of the Missouri river. All the lines included in the Joint Traffic Association must now compete with one another for business and the result must be that the weaker ones will suffer more or less without conferring any appreciable benefits upon shippers and patrons.

The Joint Traffic Association was organized to establish a schedule of rates and to effect an equitable distribution of traffic so that the railways represented in it might share proportionally in the moving of freight and in the earnings arising therefrom, on the basis of mileage employed in the service. The association lines fixed rates on interstate commerce, divided the traffic proportionally and in other ways facilitated the common carrying of freights.

This was an arrangement which seemed to be made needless by the increase of traffic and the multiplied number of competing carriers in order to give good service at profitable rates. It worked all right until the discovery was made that the association restrained trade between the states and charged excessive rates. It could do neither of these things under the law. The court has merely dissolved the association to make the members thereof comply with the law.

There will be no interruption of traffic. Rates will not be disturbed greatly, although as soon as one or two roads absorb the lion's share of traffic a fight will come on and then rates will be tumbled for the transitory benefit of the shippers and to the loss of the stockholders of the railways. But there will be no permanent reduction of rates.

Grace Baron seems determined to keep on having trouble with the males. The healthy indigents of Santiago who ask Gen. Wood for a loaf after this will get a snag of wood and a saw.

The issuance of the French yellow book and the British blue book accounts for the highly colored reports of the Fashoda situation.

Robert B. Harvey and Charles A. Card will be safe legislators and worthy representatives of the First Berkshire districts. Republicans should give them the full vote.

Capt. Andrews, who set forth valiantly from Atlantic City in fourteen feet of boat for the Azores, was mighty glad to bring up alongside the good bark Friede in latitude 39.44, longitude 39.23, stock of provisions 00.00.

In the death of Hon. Obed Hall Stamford and Southern Vermont loses one of its most substantial and influential men. He was universally respected and was recognized as a man who made the world better by having lived in it. The force of his example will endure.

The principal question in North Adams is the size of Sheriff Fuller's majority. Ex-Sheriff Crosby has not lost friends; but this is a republican year. Sheriff Fuller has made a perfectly satisfactory official and many men who would ordinarily vote for Mr. Crosby will vote for Mr. Fuller because one good term deserves another.

The decision of Colonel E. P. Clark to retire from command of the Second Massachusetts regiment will be a distinct loss to that organization. To Colonel Clark more than to any other one man is the efficiency of the Second in the late war to be attributed. He has given much of time and talent to place the regiment in the fore front of all volunteer organizations in the service. He will retire upon laurels worthily won.

A WELCOME HOME.

May State Company Comes Back From Porto Rico.

Boston, Oct. 28.—Shortly after arriving in this city Thursday the Sixth Massachusetts regiment broke up into companies, and each, being made up of men from the same city or town, departed for its individual headquarters, where a much warmer and heartier greeting was accorded by those who were nearer and dearer to everyone of the gallant soldiers. The homecoming in each of the towns differed but little one from another. Every citizen seemed to have a personal interest in the company and the men. In every town the men marched to the town hall to be formally welcomed, escorted by the local band, the local G. A. R., in many cases the fire department, and without exception through crowded streets resonant with cheers, glowing with red, white and blue. The celebrations were almost a counterpart to those which mark the fourth of July.

Company A went home to Wakefield to find nearly the whole town at the railroad station. Companies B and D of Fitchburg were received by over 15,000 people, including hundreds from surrounding towns.

In Lowell half the city turned out to greet the heroes of company C and G as they marched to the city hall headed by Lieutenant Colonel Butler Ames.

The entire business section of South Framingham was illuminated as company E marched up to the armory from the train.

At Marlboro the city government, headed by Mayor Hoyt, met company F at the railroad station, and escorted the men to the city hall. Company H at Stoneham was also warmly greeted, and at Thanksgiving time the members will enjoy a banquet.

Historic Concord fairly outfit itself in the welcome to company I. There were many vacant places in the ranks and two of its men lay dead on the transport which brought the company.

The colored people at the west end in this city gave company L, the only colored company, not only in this regiment but in the entire Massachusetts quota a grand greeting, the celebration lasting well into the night.

It was announced soon after the regiment landed that the officers had all signed a document, addressed to Governor Wolcott, declaring that they would not serve under Colonel Woodward, late commander of the regiment, after the regiment is mustered out and taken back into the state militia.

Press Agent Killed Himself.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Nathaniel Childs, press agent of the "Way Down East" company, which is playing at a local theatre, died yesterday at the Jefferson hospital. He had swallowed 45 grains of morphine after which he shot himself in the head. The act was committed Tuesday, but through the efforts of friends the affair was kept secret and Childs was taken to the hospital.

Childs was one of the best known men in the theatrical world. His home was in Boston. He graduated from Harvard in 1869, and the following year he entered the newspaper business. For several years he was editor of the Boston Traveller. He entered the theatrical profession in 1874, and wrote a number of plays. At one time he was advance agent of Henry Irving, and for 10 years acted in the same capacity for Abbey, Shroton & Gray.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER

BENJAMIN KIDD, ENGLISH THINKER AND WRITER, AND HIS VIEWS.

Doesn't Think the Time Far An Anglo-American Alliance is Yet at Hand—Trusts Might Be Much Worse Than They Are.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—[Special.]—His advent here caused much less of a sensation in the columns of the newspapers and the lesser illustrated periodicals than that of either Israel Zangwill or Thomas Henry Hall Caine, yet Benjamin Kidd, the English thinker and writer on various topics, is having a goodly measure of success in America after all. He was well received in Chicago, and he has been the recipient of many courtesies during his short stay in New York, where he is trying a few days before starting for home.

Mr. Kidd's most recent work on the control of the tropics, in which he takes the ground that in justice to its own people, the Anglo-Saxon race and the world at large the United States should maintain control over the Spanish islands, has been one of the chief topics of talk at all the gatherings to which he has been invited in this country, and he has his earlier work, "Social Evolution," in which he paid a remarkable tribute to the influence of Christianity in the development of humanity. And of course he has been asked repeatedly to give his views concerning the much mooted alliance of the United States and Great Britain. He expressed himself with more definiteness upon this point perhaps at a private dinner given in his honor at the University club than on any other occasion.

Not Ready For Alliance.

Edward T. Devine presided at that dinner, and among the speeches were those of the late John H. Brown, who happens to be an alderman, elected by the Into Citizens' Union, and Dr. Josiah Strong. In his response Mr. Kidd said that he hardly thought the time ripe for the proposed alliance.

"Englishmen do not yet understand America as well as they should before such an arrangement is entered into," said Mr. Kidd substantially. "Most Americans fail to comprehend the true nature of the part England has played in history or her present position in the world. Englishmen fail to recognize the tremendous vigor that underlies whatever there may be of crudity in American social, political and governmental conditions. Moreover, Americans as a rule do not see that England stands for the highest civilization in the world today, and that her work in India and Egypt has been and is of incalculable importance to the cause of civilization."

Mr. Kidd said much English criticism of American affairs was based on imperfect knowledge, adding a little criticism of his own. He thinks our politics savor too much of the party, the personal; and too little of affairs of world significance. He contrasted England's colonial policy with Spain's, saying that the latter had always been chiefly devoted to exploiting the colonies and the colonies, while that of England was aimed principally at improving the condition of the colonies. He admitted that there had been noteworthy exceptions, one of which had led to the separation of the 13 North American colonies from the motherland, and that the administration of Indian affairs had not been altogether clear of evil. But the administration of Egyptian matters, he said, had been remarkably free from objectionable features. He spoke of the government of that country as being as good as an independent one as could possibly be devised and carried into execution, and mentioned the fact that traders of every nationality had equal rights in Egypt with the English.

The fact that England's home government was not perfect had not worked against the establishment of good government in Egypt; while, on the other hand, he believed that the people of England had been benefited by the circumstances that the Egyptian situation had taken their attention in some degree from home matters and this very distraction had tended to purify municipal government in England and not the contrary. He would not say there were no lessons for America to learn from this, but he would not point them out.

Some Praiseworthy Things.

Mr. Kidd was exceedingly mild in his criticism of America throughout, and he found things a plenty to praise. For instance, of Admiral Dewey's victory in Manila he said it was the most important historical event since the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo. Both were noteworthy checks in the growth of decadent civilization, both were significant steps in the progress of the Anglo-Saxon idea.

He had a good deal to say about the superiority of American over English railways, and he introduced it with a word or two concerning trusts:

"I am a Liberal in politics at home, and my party has done its best to control combinations of capital. We in England have been told America is overruled by the trusts, but since I have been here I have come to think that possibly we have been governing a little too much. The free hand that has been given to your trusts and your great railway combinations has certainly produced some highly desirable results. Whatever has been the fault has not been avoided. I have been especially impressed with your railway service, the rapidity of your trains and the comfort—even luxury—of the accommodations furnished the passengers. The street railway service in every one of your cities is immeasurably superior to the tramway service in any English city."

This he said, was because Americans permit corporations to operate the lines and not to let them be controlled by too many regulations. He did not condemn trusts and monopolies by any means, but he showed as long length that they have certain good points.

Kind of Man Kidd Is.

Mr. Kidd is somewhat under middle age, and, though his head is bald on top, the hair at the sides and his brilliant mustache are dark in color and vigorous of growth. His eyes are nearly black, of a sort that look directly at whomsoever their owner is addressing and surrounded by a few of the fine wrinkles that sometimes indicate a clear perception of the humorous.

He is of about medium height, and while not at all delicate in appearance, is wholly without the ultra robust color we have come to half expect in every Englishman we meet. His voice is almost lacking in distinctively English qualities, and few Americans meeting him as a stranger would set him down for anything save a native of this country.

DEETER MARSHALL.

Strikers Go Back to Work.

Brooklyn, Oct. 28.—The laster's strike in this city and in the entire district has been declared off, and all the men returned to work this morning. This decision was reached at a protracted meeting of the conference committee, which is composed of the executive boards of all the unions in the district, and was reported by that committee to a mass meeting of last night which was awaiting the result of its deliberations. The strike is not only of the lasters against their employers, but also the war of the unions against the machine companies.

CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ill.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an impression, more or less, of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better. In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., she offers sick women her advice without charge.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a wellspring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more. I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken seven bottles of it, and am entirely cured."—Mrs. JOHN FOREMAN, 26 N. Woodberry Ave., Baltimore, Md. The above letter from Mrs. Foreman is only one of thousands.

She says it makes the skin feel so soft and smooth, and cures itching immediately. It is strongly endorsed by Mary J. Felt, Trained Nurse, of Boston. Druggists sell it.

Don't Be An Anglo-American Flag.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 28.—The crew of the James G. Blaine, which has arrived here from a bank holiday trip, was given quite a scare on the way home last Monday when the vessel was sighted in target practice. Some of the shells of the warship began dropping in close proximity. One dropped across her stern, and another whizzed across her bows. Captain Streum decided they were coming too close for comfort, and ordered the American flag to the mast-head, when at once there was a cessation of target firing.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

COMING TO NORTH ADAMS.

The most renowned specialist in America to visit our city on Monday, Oct. 31, and will remain 7 days, including Sunday, Nov. 6. Office at Windsor House.

Dr. Clarendon and staff of physicians of the Massachusetts Eclectic Medical Institute of Boston, Mass., are making a tour of Massachusetts and will visit the important cities. As this trip is for the sole purpose of demonstrating to the public the wonderful potency of Dr. Clarendon's new system of treatment, they will give consultation and advice, surgical operation and one month's medicine free.

All that is asked in return is that every patient treated will state to their friends the results obtained by their new treatment.

All diseases and deformities treated. It is not more than once or twice in a lifetime that a community is so situated as the one in which you live is placed on a level with the greatest medical authority of the world such as London, Vienna, Rome, New York, Berlin, St. Louis, Chicago, etc. The doctors and specialists take advantage of the opportunity here offered. They may never again have the privilege of consulting with such brilliant physicians as Dr. Clarendon. Do, then, and have the best for your mind. If your case is curable they will treat you. If incurable they will give you such advice as to prolong life.

YOUTHFUL MEN.—Middle-aged, old men, weak, premature decay, exhausted and enfeebled powers, or all diseases arising from habits of youth: early vice, intemperance, excesses, etc., diseases causing loss of drains, weak or falling memory, blotches, pimples, impure blood, falling of the hair, etc., should call at once. By their improved method and remedies such sufferers are guaranteed immediate relief and a permanent cure.

A PERFECT, ABSOLUTE AND PERMANENT CURE.

These doctors will not undertake that they do not take incurable cases—reserving the right to reject any case that in their judgment has passed into the incurable stage. In fact, year after year, at some prior stage these cases were probably curable. See to it that you do not delay too long.

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 28.—The preliminary examination of Mrs. Rudolph Banderson, who is charged with murdering her husband, was begun Thursday. Mary Banderson, the woman's servant testified that she saw her mistress get up bottles glass and take it to the sperm mill in the cellar, saying: "Perhaps you think this awful, Mary, but I think nothing more about it than eating my breakfast." She then ground the glass and put it into the porridge, which her aged husband ate. He became very sick complained of indigestion, gradually grew worse, and there was nothing but quarreling between them until death came.

Sailors' Oldest Call.

Key West, Oct. 28.—The schooner, Kate, which left Key West Oct. 1 with a cargo of stores and medical supplies for the Cuban forces in Sancti Spiritus was overtaken by a storm during the afternoon of Oct. 21. At daylight Oct. 22 the Kate struck on the San Carlos reefs, province of Pinar del Rio. The members of the crew escaped death almost by a miracle. After swimming ashore they took refuge in a swamp.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.

HEMLOCK BROOK.

Samuel Hickox of Bee Hill threshed 67 bushels of buckwheat off 1 1/2 acres and L. J. Gardner had 38 bushels from 1 1/2 bushels sowing.

H. A. Hickox with his wife were cured to Oppenheim, N. Y., for several days last week to visit his sick sister, Mrs. Fannie Brown.

With the exception of apples, the various farm crops have been better than last year, but not enough so in quantity and price to make up for the increased tax rate which is $18.60 per $1,000.

Linnaeus Galusha of Bee Hill, who has been running a threshing machine for his brother is again called to North Adams by the firm of carpenters for whom he has formerly worked and who recognize in him a skilful and faithful mechanic.

Chestnuts and coons do greatly abound. Quite a number of the latter have been secured, one being caught last week weighing 25 pounds. It took the boys all night, J. A. Galusha went hunting a little while Thursday afternoon and shot four coons and in the evening initiated a village friend into the mysteries of coon hunting.

D. B. Galusha, Jr., who has earned a reputation as a successful breeder of fine wool sheep, lately shipped a merino buck to W. C. Jewett, Worcester, master of the state prange. It is of H. The buck is a direct descendant of the famous Barnum, formerly owned by Mr. Galusha and accounted one of the finest of its kind in the country.

Augustus Torrey has been sick for a few days, but is now better, and able to be about with his oxen drawing slash wood and doing other jobs about the farm that come in his way. Mr. Torrey is in his 86th year and gives strong evidence that his will be a case of wear out rather than rust out.

Sampson Gardner and son have two fine orchards that yield well in bearing years, while in off years they have a fair supply of fruit. The strong winds that prevailed about the time fruit was setting, destroyed so many buds, that Mr. Gardner in common with many other growers, concluded he would have but few this year. He lately finished picking and the result was 71 barrels of good size and quality, the largest yield per number of trees in town, with the possible exception of Stephen Bacon's orchards.

FLORIDA.

Mrs. E. P. Howes of Leyden is visiting relatives and friends in town.

William Coddling of Savoy, was the guest of J. O. Brown on Sunday last.

H. S. Brown is in Pittsfield this week, serving as jurymen from this town.

Thomas Walsh of Boston is with his brother, William Walsh, for the winter.

E. R. Norton of Westfield was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Read last week.

H. S. Brown and wife have been enjoying a carriage drive to Leyden this week.

Mrs. A. E. Bliss and daughter, Miss Clara, took a carriage drive to Leyden last week.

Mr. Seyfried of New London, Conn., was the guest of C. H. Read and wife last week.

Mrs. D. W. Bliss is very ill with pneumonia. She is under the care of Dr. Bowker of Charlemon.

Mrs. Clarissa Brown, with her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Bliss, have been visiting friends in Monroe the past week.

Miss Sarah Read with Miss Newrey and Miss Adams attended the teachers' convention held in Charlemon last Friday.

George Brown, eldest son of J. O. Brown, who has been ill with pneumonia, is slowly recovering. Dr. Millard of North Adams attended.

C. F. Rice and wife of North Leverett spent Sunday in town. Mrs. Rice is a daughter of Rev. John Greene, a former pastor of this place.

The Ladies' Aid society will give a necktie and apron supper on Wednesday evening of next week at the home of Mrs. L. W. Bennett. This supper will be held in the place of the regular monthly meeting for October. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

A company of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Kemp on Wednesday afternoon and evening of last week to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their marriage. A pleasant time was enjoyed, remarks were made, and many fine merriments were left by friends and relatives attending.

The supper given by the ladies at the home of J. O. Brown, on Wednesday of last week was a success in every respect. Between eighty and ninety people were present, and over fifteen dollars was realized by the ladies. Recitations were given by Misses Sarah Thatcher, Ora Lees, and Alice Thatcher, and selections of music added to complete a most enjoyable occasion.

WEST HAVEN.

Rev. A. E. Peffer of North Ham spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Stiles.

Sayles Barton is very seriously ill. Dr. Kennedy of Shelburne Falls is attending him.

Albert Maynard has gone to Bridgeport, Ct., to visit his sister-in-law Mrs. William Olds.

Lewis Longley of Ayre has been in town for a few days while on his way to Springfield.

Mrs. Theodore Childs and daughter of Deerfield is spending a few days at her old home in this town.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hildreth of Adams and Mrs. Andrew Mason of Dalton were guests at W. A. Fuller's last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fuller attended the teachers' institute held at Memorial hall Shelburne Falls on Friday.

NORTH POWNA.

Mrs. Dennis Riley's little son is doing well.

An apple dealer is buying up the apples in the vicinity.

Mrs. David Towles preached in the M. E. church Sunday night.

LATE FASHIONS FROM PARIS

[Copyright, 1898.]

Paris, Oct. 8.—The woman who has a seal-skin coat or cape, the relic of a past season, will find that this year it will be almost impossible to have the ever-obliging furrier make it over into something harmonizing with the season's fashions. The cut of the winter fur garments is something distinctly different from anything recently worn and consumes a quantity of material appalling to think upon, considering the cost of seal-skin and sable.

The new fur capes are distinctly novel. They fit the shoulders closely, are longer than heretofore and run to markedly greater width than any capes yet seen upon the shoulders of even the most ultra fashionable woman. The tendency of the capes, too, is to be frilled and flounced very much like the latest skirts. Now, cloth and fur are very different in their flexibility, and one would imagine that a frilled fur cape would be rather an awkward-looking garment. The fur, however, is so skilfully treated that the frills are quite as graceful and well adjusted as those upon a broadcloth or cashmere gown. A shaped flounce about the bottom of the cape or a trim running up the front and having a jabot-like effect is a favorite application of the new fashion.

An example of the smart new capes of seal was shown by a shopman who makes a point of being the first to display the winter's mode in furs. This cape was closely fitted over the shoulders and widened until in shape it almost resembled a bell. The length was what is known as three-quarters. A very high collar lined with sable and edged with something like the old Elizabethan collar was designed to protect the wearer's neck and the back of the head even in the most stormy weather. Large lapels tapered to a point at the waist. These, with the collar lining and the roll encircling the cape just below the lapels, were of sable and made a rich contrast to the seal of the cape.

Not only are some of the new capes of an unprecedented length, but the coats resemble them in this respect. A coat that will combine elegance with comfort on a zero day was made of seal-skin a little longer than the cape just described. The coat was light fitting and had a very high collar and tight sleeves. The skirt of the coat was cut quite full and had a tiny roll of the seal-skin, like braid, applied from the large button at the waist, apron fashion, about the coat.

Pointed rolls of seal-skin ornamented the sleeves near the wrist, and one broad rever fell back over the left side of the coat and was continued almost to the waist.

A small cape that bore the hallmark of the prevailing fashion was of mink cut to form a point at the back and front and reaching just to the waist. Two shaped frills went about the cape, one falling from the high collar to the waist in the shape of a jabot.

Quite a different pattern was the cape of seal-skin surrounded with a deep shaped flounce, rounded at the corners and headed by a band of sable. The shoulders of the wearer were distinctly outlined, owing to the cut and fit of the wrap. The inside of the high, wide collar was lined with sable, which seems to be one of the most popular of the winter trappings for seal.

With the return to popularity of seal-skin comes the adoption of the chinchilla cape, trimmed with ponderous frills of the same material. Even the collars are undulated to look like old-fashioned ruffs. A cape of gray chinchilla thus fashioned forming an especially effective frame for a young and lovely face.

The things of all these garments are very handsome, rich brocades and heavy figured satins being especially used. Tints to harmonize with the color of the furs are often selected for linings. Sable and chinchilla coats are of course only for those of ample means and extravagant tastes, while fox and mink are worn by those of less expensive tendencies. A cape of sable lined with chinchilla is the same of luxury. It is noticeable that lace and chiffon embroideries trim some of the new fur garments.

The combination of lace with the fur gives a richness and lightness which are very attractive. The garment on which I noticed the most striking arrangement of this sort was a sack coat of dark striped mink, the lines being arranged vertically. Broad lapels from the shoulders to the bottom of the jacket were trimmed with alternate clusters of lace and bits of fur. The sleeves were high upon the shoulder, with a rather full puff, and finished at the wrist with a flounce of fur underset with a frill of lace similar to that upon the front. The high collar was made of mink, in which the stripes were more closely set than those in the body of the garment. The stripes upon the sleeve were set horizontally to the wrist.

A cape appropriate for an elderly matron was made of Persian lamb, the back much longer than the front and the wrap bordered with a heavy flounce of sable. The high collar, set upon a narrow band of the Persian lamb, was lined with sable, the flounce down the front, in spite of the heaviness of the fur, being arranged in three heavy folds resembling a jabot.

On the cloth wraps fur appears in a profusion not seen for some seasons. A handsome combination of fur and braiding was shown in a pelisse of pearly colored cloth, the high collar and single rever being lined with ermine. The sleeves were bell shaped at the wrist and lined with the same fur, so that should the wearer wish to turn them back over the hand there would appear a cuff. True lovers' knots in silk braid were embroidered on the sleeves. Several larger knots appeared upon the skirt of the long straight coat. Ermine is beyond the reach of people of moderate income, but women with money are very fond of publishing their wealth by means of the use of this fur. Evening cloaks of ermine are worth an exorbitant sum, but are nevertheless likely to be much worn by ladies of fashion, for the much flounced and frilled short cape is most becoming to the average woman of moderate good looks and costs a small fortune.

On one of the new models illustrating the winter millinery I noticed a good deal more tulle than is supposed to be appropriate for the cold winter season, and on inquiry I found that the use of this material is one of the innovations of the hour. The tulle on the particular hat mentioned was gathered in a small bouillonné on the brim, with a small pattern in circles upon the crown. The prevailing colors in winter hats are of a periwinkle and royal blue, with many shades of orange, mauve and violet. The latter are also much worn and are seen in startling combinations with some of the new blues.

The blues are trying even to the fairest complexions, and to the brunettes they give a look of extreme maleness. The hats are larger in size, even the bouillonné hats are proportionately expanded. The crown is made of soft material, lined with an embroidered material that adds immensely to the cost of the hat. The hats and bonnets are, as a rule, much trimmed in front to the neck of the back of the head, which has up to date been receiving more than its share of attention.

Flowers are much used in trimming, all flowers being of velvet. An artistic hat of dark heliotrope velvet was trimmed with shaded roses, a black opium plume and a lace scarf, the ends of the scarf falling below the brim of the hat in the back.

A hat surer to awaken admiration in the hearts of fashionable women was shown at Mme. M's, on the Rue de la Paix. This hat was of velvet colored beaver felt, turned up at one side and ornamented with rosettes of lavender and heliotrope silk. In front were clusters of dark colored roses, always useful and are extremely smart when profusely trimmed with lace and relieved with old rose, shrimp pink or a delicate apple green, while for half mourning ivory white or heliotrope is useful.

Wonderfully pretty are the little trimmings prepared to edge bows and collars. Frillings and flounces, thin ribbon, every sort of ruche, narrow puckered ribbon, frills of tulle and all thin and dainty arrangements for the hat, the prime object of which seems to be to give the appearance of softness.

For Pretty Figures. All those who possess pretty figures will rejoice to hear that the inconvenient but charming bodices which have fastened down the back are coming back to us, and many are the gowns which are already made in this way.

Tea gowns are now so perfectly fitted and only the immediate front left loose that they present the appearance of an evening gown elaborated to some extent and allowing scope for artistic ideas. The very loose tea gown is a thing of the past and in many cases it is difficult to distinguish the tea gown from the demitasse or evening gown itself. Large quantities of chiffon, museline de soie and soft lace are now used on tea gowns, and wide, handsome guipure insertions are also employed, but relief is in bold contrast and generally of velvet or rich satin.

Entire gowns of velvet are also effective, especially when they open over a front of some light colored material or a loose overgown is artistic over sleeves and underbodies of soft silk in a pale contrasting tint. Sapphire blue harmonizes delightfully with dull gold, or a pale yellow or amethyst or dull velvet.

THE NEW FUR COATS.

Shawl shaped capes and cloaks are to be much in vogue, and they are being made in seal-skins and sables and in a combination of furs such as Persian lamb and sable or mink. They always have something of a middle aged appearance, however, more especially when carried out in fur, and so the more youthful folk will pin their affections to and spend their money on the shoulder capes, with a full full sweeping up in front and forming a sort of jabot below the high collar. Sometimes this full is in the fur and sometimes makes a collar, but the shape remains representative of the coming fashions.

In fur coats there is a vogue for tight fitting double breasted shapes, with long, plain basques cut away in front after the fashion of a man's morning coat, but as it is not given to many to be able to follow the new fashions in fur each season a shawl-basque coat of caracul or Persian lamb can be made to pass muster by having a new high collar of mink or sable or chinchilla added and continued into cascade revers which taper into a point at the waist, where it is surrounded by a band of satin or velvet ribbon, but not on any account whatever one of the jeweled belts, whose day is now over. Neither must there be any noticeable pouch effect in either dress bodice or coat, for all the new models display a trimly tight fitting effect in front as well as at the back and the sides.

A Fashionable Skirt.

Plaid skirts and cloth costees are fashions which, in some form or other, generally appear for autumn months. One destined for a very fashionable dame had a skirt of fine Scotch homespun, woven as a blue green and black tartan. The shape was of the now prevalent "bell," unlined, but made up over a foundation of soft green alpaca. The coat bodices of dark bottle-green cloth, braided in darkest blue.

Its make was simple, the back seamless, no side pieces, the fronts cut with long tabs from the side of the darts. Revers were covered with green silk shot black and braided in front. A black satin belt drew in the back and sides to the figure and, passing under the tabbed portion of the fronts, fastened in the center with a handsome gold clasp.

The vest was of pale yellow chine silk, which color was repeated in the hat by chiffon spotted black velvet. A daring touch was given to the hat by some parrots' wings of blue and green plumes.

Roughly calculated, a skirt of the kind depicted would take 4½ yards, and in an ozone cloth 44 inches wide a little coat bodice could be secured from 2½ yards.

The Newest Shapes.

One of the newest shapes for the coat and the one highest in popular favor at the present moment is that which is cut very short at the waist and extremely long at the back. These are generally made in cloth and very handsomely braided. They are becoming to nearly all figures, excepting those which are disproportionately stout, but they seem to have a happy tendency of increasing the waist and improving the shape, ways providing (and it is a big proviso) that they are of a good cut and suitable material.

How to Enlarge A Small Room.

In these days of flat-houses and small rooms it is a question of vital importance not only how to utilize every square inch of space, but to give visitors the most impressive possible idea of spaciousness. The average modern room has an area of about 8 by 10 feet. Of course in the smaller towns where prosperity reigns, where real estate values are not rated by the square inch and the apartment house has not made its appearance, this is an evil as yet unknown, for as a rule old-fashioned houses are roomy and airy. For some reason modern builders have a mania for cutting up a house into as many cubby holes as they can manage, and whether they are building a colonial mansion or a Queen Anne villa the effect is likely to be much the same.

Small pieces of furniture and those of course of some light and airy design will take away a little from the appearance of smallness in a tiny room. Chippendale or empire is more suitable for a small apartment than mahogany or old English. Not only is it best to have the furniture of a dainty and fragile pattern, but there should be as few pieces as possible consistent with comfort.

Wall paper should be of a neutral tint, with a small pattern or of plain cartridge paper having a narrow border. The pattern of the carpet should follow the same idea. It should be small and simple. If there is a polished floor, the rug which cover it should be narrow bordered.

Where there are several rooms, one opening into the other, it is, when practicable, a good plan to remove the dividing doors and throw all into one, the archways between being prettily ornamented with curtains. Although each room may be small, the vista suggested by the open doorways gives a very fair idea of space.

Light in a small room adds much to its apparent area. When it is possible, bay windows should be thrown out and the upper third of the window filled in with a rush of real or imitation stained glass. The curtain should be draped about the window, not over it, unless a filmy curtain covers the glass to shut out the curious eyes of passers-by. A window seat or a few plants on the broad low shelf below will be an effective item in the furnishing of the room, yet will take away nothing from its extent of available surface.

Corners are always made much of in the tiny room. There is a couch piled high with pillows and having above it a couple of shelves of books and some of shining satinwood or Japanese lacquer ware for another, a table on which are displayed the handsomest books in the house, the prettiest vase, with its cut flowers freshly supplied every day, and the photographs of the honored friends of the household. Sometimes, instead of these, the table holds a pair of china for one corner, a tiny table of shining satinwood or Japanese lacquer stands a chair of white and gold or a dainty bit of wickerwork.

A couple of pictures upon the wall or a bracket surrounded by smaller pictures forms an effective background. A cabinet may adorn still another corner, or a small sofa will do—in fact, anything that furnishes the corner without seeming to crowd it.

Of course the piano, if the family is a work of all sorts is sold is to be fitted over the mirrors, and it should have a light pillar down the center hiding the junction of the glasses. Broad lapels from the shoulders to the bottom of the jacket were trimmed with alternate clusters of lace and bits of fur. The sleeves were high upon the shoulder, with a rather full puff, and finished at the wrist with a flounce of fur underset with a frill of lace similar to that upon the front. The high collar was made of mink, in which the stripes were more closely set than those in the body of the garment. The stripes upon the sleeve were set horizontally to the wrist.

Of course where the glass is in any way marred the damaged part must be turned in such a way that the pillar or curtain will hide the flaw.

When dressing and much plain sewing have to be undertaken by the daughters of the house, it is well that their work should be done under the pleasant conditions. A workroom can usually be set aside in moderately large houses, and this should have among its furniture a very steady large table for cutting out and one or two little movable tables to hold small articles near at the worker's hand.

The windows should be kept immaculately bright, so that every particle of light may be received into the room.

Chairs should be rather low than high, as the lower the seat the more restful will be the sewer's position. The floor of the room is best covered with matting, to which threads will not cling. Scales should be kept really sharp. Reels of cotton should be incased in little sateen bags, with just the end of the thread sticking out, as these prevent the threads from unwinding.

Finger guards of tortoise shell or celluloid preserve the appearance of the hands when much sewing has to be done, and it may not be generally known that a short needle is much more expeditious than a long one when much needlework is undertaken.

To Make Cream Cheese. Cream cheeses are prepared as follows: Take a clean cheesecloth and dip it in cold salt and water, then wring it out and put in some thick cream. The latter, having stood in a warm place, has extracted a pink coloring from the root, strain it and add half an ounce of white wax. When the wax is quite melted, add to it two or three drops of extract of roses and stir the whole until up the cloth, fold it in a thick, coarse cloth, and—this sounds curious—dig a hole about a foot deep in the ground.

When the cream is ready to be used, it is necessary to have some in a small ready-to-use upon the chapped skin. A suitable preparation is formed of a gram of alkanet root placed in an ounce of oil of almonds. When the latter, having stood in a warm place, has extracted a pink coloring from the root, strain it and add half an ounce of white wax. When the wax is quite melted, add to it two or three drops of extract of roses and stir the whole until up the cloth, fold it in a thick, coarse cloth, and—this sounds curious—dig a hole about a foot deep in the ground.

All fresh vegetables should be washed and soaked in strong brine, which will freshen the leaves, besides driving out any insects that may be lurking among them.

A food suitable for blackbirds, thrushes, finches, etc., is prepared in the following manner: Boil four eggs perfectly hard. When cold, remove the shells and divide and pound the yolks fine. Add to them a pound of white meal and a tablespoonful of olive oil. Mix well and press the dough through a fine

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

It is well to remember that when salt is dried in the oven for table use it should be allowed to cool completely before it is placed in the saltcellars; otherwise it will harden into a lump. It is a test of good housekeeping that the salt in the cellars be dry, crisp and powdery.

When chilly autumn winds begin to blow, it is necessary to have some in a small ready-to-use upon the chapped skin. colander, so that it may be formed into small grains. Fry these over a gentle fire and stir them until of a light brown color, when they will be ready for use.

When putting on bone castings, make a loop at the top of each by turning over an inch of binding. Run the casting on rather full, or it will soon be in holes.

Always iron coat collars and cuffs that are to have several rows of stitching round the edge before putting them in the machine and again after the stitching is done.

Put skirts into the hands and see that they are the same length all round before finishing off the bottom hem. A skirt that sags at the back is not beautiful to look upon.

New irons, such as sadirons, trying pans or waffle irons, should be heated slowly, or they will be likely to crack. Strong, pure vinegar rubbed every night into bad corns is said to ease them considerably, or it may be put on by making a vinegar and bread poultice and binding this over the corns.

Have a stationary bucket on the side of the scrubbing bucket to prevent the bits of soap from wasting in the water.

Keep scouring soap in a little wire basket over the sink. An ordinary soap dish will hold the water and waste the soap.

A little soft soap made from half a pound of hard soap and two quarts of boiling water is much more economical, if properly used, for laundry purposes than ordinary hard soap.

An excellent and good housekeeping and economy consists in having a variety of bags, large and small, neatly labeled and tacked on the back of the pantry door to hold the kitchen towels and dishcloths that are prepared and ready for use—in fact, all the little articles that are needed at a moment's warning in the kitchen.

The Arrangement Of a Bedroom.

If we compare modern bedrooms with those of a few years ago, we cannot fail to recognize the immense improvement which has taken place not only in the style of the furniture, but in the decorations and general arrangement of the rooms. Instead of the dreary wall papers, heavy, cumbersome furniture and thick material hangings we have choice of bright, cheerful wall papers, simple, well designed suits and light, dainty cottons and other thin fabrics for the hangings. Everything is done to make such rooms comfortable, healthy and exceedingly tasteful, and there is no excuse for them being otherwise, and they can be furnished for quite a trifling outlay.

It is always well that simplicity should reign supreme in the arrangement of a bedroom, but we must not mistake scant furniture and mere utility as representing altogether what we mean by simplicity. We must have beauty and comfort, combined with great economy in ornament. The bed should be well designed and constructed proportionately and admirably fitted for its purpose. The floor should be covered with a square of carpet or a rug, which can be readily taken up when shaking is necessary, and the windows should not be hung with heavy curtains, but with thin muslin, printed cotton or cretonne.

With regard to the headstead, everything is in favor of the new wood one, which is designed to correspond usually with the other furniture and is constructed in such a manner as to be hygienically satisfactory, as in place of the wooden bottom and the awkward joints which formed lodgments for dust and dirt it has an iron bath frame which drops into metal sockets attached to the posts of the headstead. In appearance it is vastly superior to the metal erections and is lightly and elegantly made.

Many bedrooms are now furnished with fittings, and much space can be economized thereby, while the general arrangement is more convenient in every way, but the extra expense which this particular style of furnishing means no doubt deters many people from adopting it.

Curried Eggs.

Two onions, an apple, one ounce and a half of butter, a tablespoonful of curry powder, a dessertspoonful of grated coconut, a teaspoonful of red currant jelly, half a pint of milk, five hard-boiled eggs, a teaspoonful of rice, a teaspoonful of water, a dessertspoonful of corn flour.

Wash the rice and boil it for 12 minutes in boiling water. Drain it off and dry it on a sieve in front of the fire. Chop the onions, mix the curry powder with a teaspoonful of water and put it in a saucepan with the butter, chopped onions and the apple, cut very small. Cook all together until the water has boiled away and the onion is frying in the butter. Add the milk, put on the lid, and let all simmer gently half an hour. Mix the corn flour smoothly with a little water, stir it in and let the sauce boil. Add salt to season and the red currant jelly. Cut one of the hard-boiled eggs into eight pieces to garnish the dish, cut the other four into small cubes and warm them in the sauce. Put the rice round a hot dish, pour the eggs in the middle and arrange the pieces around.

Fench Molds.

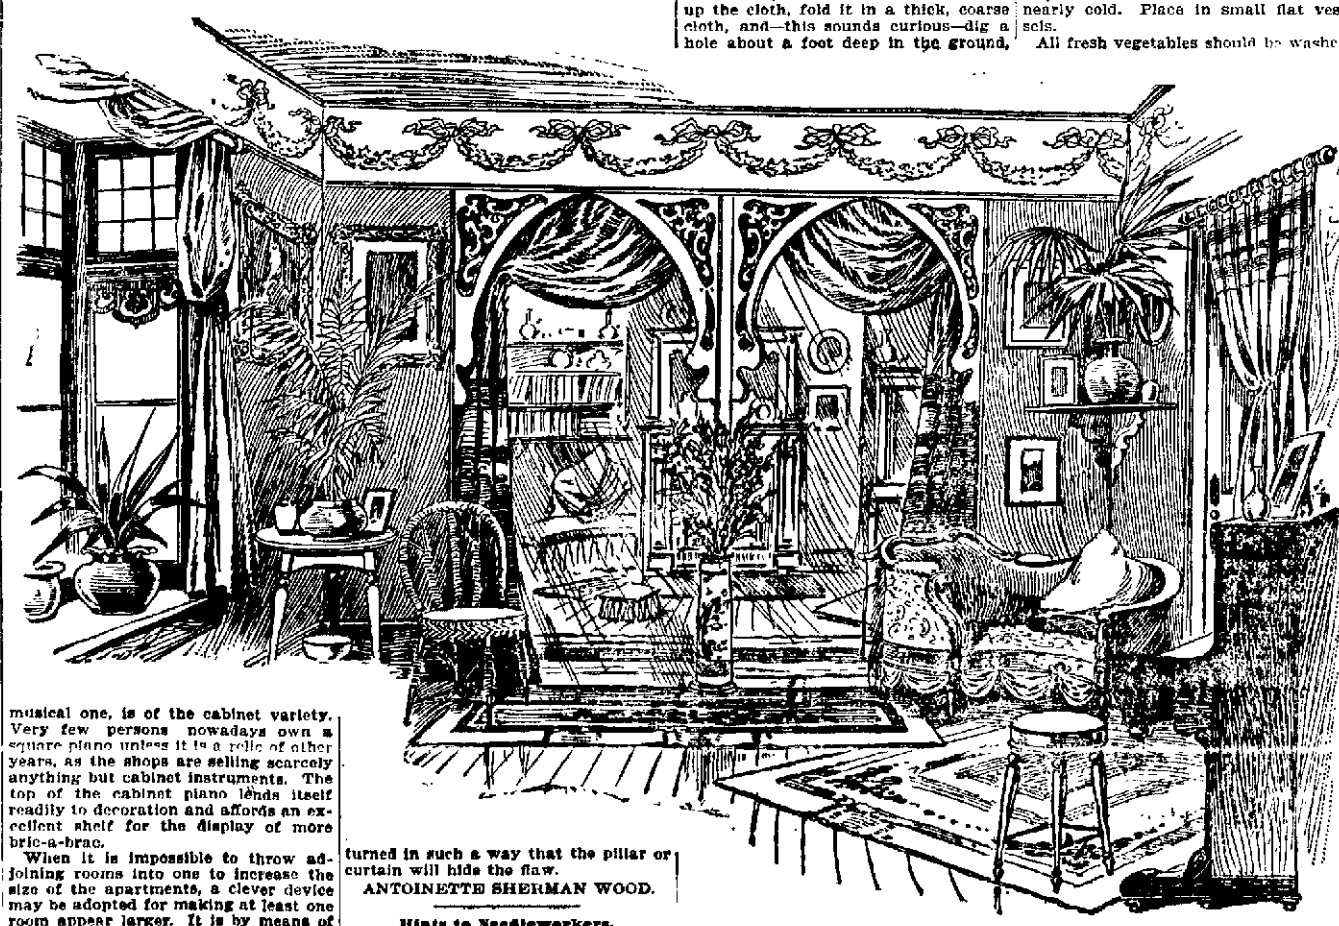

Beat up two eggs till very light and add a pint of milk, half a teaspoonful of salt and 2½ cups of flour. Amalgamate thoroughly and add a tablespoonful of melted butter and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Grease some small pudding cups and half fill with some of the prepared batter. Fill each cup with a peach, cover with hot dust with powdered sugar and place the cups in a baking pan or other shallow dish that will contain boiling water sufficient to about cover the outside of the cups. Place this in a quick oven and bake the puddings for 20 minutes. Serve hot with sweet cream.

An Unrivaled Cosmetics.

Wash the face thoroughly with soap lathered in your hands, dry it carefully and then bathe it with an infusion of horse radish in milk prepared in this manner: Scrape and wash well some horse radish roots, cut about half an ounce into very thin slices and pour over it a pint of boiling milk. Cover it close and leave it to infuse until cold. Strain it with pressure, and it is fit for use.

Cure For Chills.

Take a piece of alum about the size of a nut and melt it in enough hot water to cover the hands. When the alum is melted, soak your hands in the liquid for nearly a quarter of an hour. The hands must then be covered with flannel, which should be worn all night and as much as possible during the day. Repeat this night and morning.

COL. CLARK TO RESIGN

Will Withdraw From Militia as Soon as Possible After Mustering Out.

CHANGES IN SECOND REGIMENT

Complaint at Rapidity of Medical Examinations. Many in the Regiment Will Apply For Pensions, and Think Examining Physicians Too Lax.

There will be much local interest and great surprise at the announcement made in Springfield last evening that Col. R. P. Clark of the second regiment has had enough of military life and will resign his post as commander of the regiment gets back on a militia footing and is in good running order. Col. Clark cannot say how soon this will be, but is not anxious to prolong his stay in service longer than needful. Col. Clark has given much time and energy to the oversight of the second regiment and feels that he must give more attention to other matters.

Col. Clark has this week recommended Dr. Ernest A. Gates for promotion from assistant surgeon in the second to surgeon with the rank of major. Dr. Ernest A. Gates was first assistant surgeon under the late Dr. Henry C. Bowen. This promotion advances Dr. Gates to the place made vacant by Dr. Bowen's death at Santiago, August 3. Dr. Gates is a graduate of Dartmouth, and his home is at Gardner, where his father, five sisters and a brother live. He has had his home and office in Springfield for the past three years. He was with the second regiment during its active service at the front and is very popular among his comrades.

The rapidity with which the medical examinations have been made in some of the companies this week is still causing unfavorable comment among the men. It is believed that the giving of statements of good health and allowing the men to be discharged with such a rating will operate seriously against many of the men getting pensions who are really entitled to them.

There is a qualification, however, which should not be overlooked. Many of the men were not in perfect health when they enlisted, but were allowed to serve because of peculiar traits or because of their own persistency. Many of these men are in as good health at present as at the time of enlistment.

Col. Clark said in regard to this that a more particular examination would be likely to operate against many who, under the hasty examination, were pronounced unsound. This argument will work the other way as well, however. There will be a large number of men who will apply for pensions.

WHEELMEN AND POLITICS.

L. A. W. to Interview Candidates in Its Work for Bicycle Legislation.

H. E. Blake, local consul of the L. A. W., has received from the Massachusetts division a circular which is being sent to local consuls throughout the state requesting them to gather information which will be valuable to the league in its efforts to secure legislation which will compel the use of wide tires on heavy wagons and compel railroads to carry bicycles as baggage without extra charge. The circulars are sent out by the chairman of the committee on legislation, and among other things the consuls are instructed to interview all candidates for both branches of the legislature and get their views on these questions, and, other things being equal, the vote of the wheelmen will be determined by the answers.

The league is not a political party, but it is working assiduously in the interests of wheelmen, feeling that these interests do not conflict in any way with those of the general public or the railroads. In New York state the railroads are obliged to carry bicycles the same as any other baggage, and the Long Island railroad has put on special cars for them. The wheelmen claim that this law would bring enough business to the railroads to offset whatever inconvenience might be caused, and that what they demand is therefore reasonable and just.

The effort to pass both of these bills narrowly failed last winter. The senate tied on the bill compelling railroads to carry wheels as common baggage, and the wide tire bill was defeated by a small majority. Better results are hoped for this winter, and with this end in view the league will, as before stated, sound every candidate for the house and senate prior to election, that the wheelmen and all others interested may vote intelligently.

Will Recite "Star Spangled Banner."

An announcement of interest in connection with the performance of Julius Caesar by Charles B. Hanford and his company at the Wilson theater, this evening, will be the recitation by Mr. Hanford at the close of the performance of "The Star Spangled Banner." Mr. Hanford recited this poem a short time ago before President McKinley and an audience of 8,000 people, and the recitation tonight is by request of several who had read of his success in its rendition. The play of Julius Caesar is the one on which Mr. Hanford and his company count for one of their best successes, and it is put on here with the same attention to detail, and the same scenery as far as possible that was used during its run of four weeks in Philadelphia this season.

FOOTBALL GAME FORFEITED.

Williamstown High School Team Objects to Umpire's Decision.

The Drury and Williamstown high school football teams played a very close game on the fair grounds yesterday afternoon, until in the second half Williamstown objected to a decision made by Umpire Potter, and after some discussion left the field, the Drury team thereupon claiming the game by a score of 11 to 0. Williamstown had the ball within a few yards of the Drury goal line, when the umpire gave Drury the ball on downs. Williamstown at once protested, claiming that the five yards had been made, and failing to carry the protest, left the field. The cause of the disagreement was the failure to provide the linesmen with a rope, so that the measurements were open to question. There were earlier disputes in the game, due to the same cause.

The score at the time the game was thus prematurely ended was 6 to 0 in favor of Drury. There was a strong wind, and Williamstown, winning the toss, had this in its favor. Drury kicked off, and Prindle, who took the ball, was downed without gain. After a 25 yard run by Watson, and several short gains, the ball changed sides several times on downs, and Drury finally took it to the goal line, where Meers crossed for the first and only touchdown of the game, kicking a goal from it. The first half ended with the ball in Drury's possession, and in Drury territory.

In the second half Williamstown kicked to Slattery, who fumbled and gave Williamstown the ball. Short plunges through the line took it to Drury's yard line, where the dispute arose which ended the game. Good playing was done on both sides by the backs, and by Prindle and Sherman for Williamstown, and Robinson, Briggs and Carey for Drury. Drury's next game is with the Springfield high school tomorrow. The lineup follows:

SPRINGFIELD UNION LOSER.

Folwell Libel Case Ended at Pittsfield, A New Berkshire Lawyer.

At the opening of the Berkshire superior court in Pittsfield yesterday Ernest H. Johnson of Pittsfield was admitted to membership in the Berkshire bar.

Judge Dewey charged the jury in the case of Frederick S. Folwell of Pittsfield against the Springfield Union Publishing company and the Lowell Morning Mail. The charge occupied nearly an hour, in which Judge Dewey reviewed the points at issue, with special reference to the lease under which A. P. Langtry is the publisher, the question of the retraction published after the alleged libel, and the matter of damages.

Exceptions were taken to many of the rulings, and Judge Dewey had a special verdict reported upon the question as to whether at the time of publication the defendants had any malice toward the plaintiff. The jury, after some two hours of deliberation, returned a verdict of $450 against the Union and $100 against the Lowell Morning Mail company.

The Union case has been three times tried and the Mail's case twice.

Guarding an Important Witness.

Detective George W. Mayers of the Newcomb detective agency of New York was arrested at the Hudson River railroad depot in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Thursday, by Secret Service Officers William H. Thebold and William G. Flynn. The secret service men had with them Miss Ivy Crutcher of New York, an important witness in a $100,000 diamond smuggling case, and Mayers has been reporting her movements for persons concerned.

Last December Detective Thebold seized $100,000 worth of smuggled diamonds, and Max Lasar of 24 Maiden lane, New York, was arrested for the deed. He was placed under $10,000 bail.

When Detective Thebold returned from Europe last spring he brought Miss Crutcher with him. Her evidence in the case is of the utmost importance, and she was guarded by a chaplain to the Berkshire hills, and she has been staying in various places in this county under the constant surveillance of Detectives Flynn and Thebold. Detective Flynn overheard a woman detective try to bribe Miss Crutcher while she was here. Mayers followed the party to Poughkeepsie, where he was arrested on the technical charge of a disorderly person.

Trains Delayed By Wreck.

Trains on the local branch of the Boston & Albany were delayed somewhat by a wreck over the main line yesterday morning. An east-bound freight jumped the rails about two and a half miles west of the Pittsfield depot, and it required the working crew about six hours to clear the tracks. The train was composed of 10 cars, and it is not known just what caused the accident, but as it happened on a curve it is conjectured that the train had broken in two, and that the rear section crashed into the forward one, causing two cars to leave the rails. Those two cars were partly telescoped and had to be pulled apart. One was loaded with white beans and the people in the vicinity of the wreck were given permission to help themselves. Several passenger trains were delayed a few hours, but in the afternoon all trains were running on schedule time.

Chainless Wheels Drop.

The local bicycle agency has received the schedule of prices for Columbia wheels next season. The fact of interest is that the chainless models, 50 and 51, have been reduced in price to $75, a drop of $50. The 39 chain wheels, models 57 and 58, will be sold at $60, with $10 extra for 30 inch wheels, for which the Columbia company expects very little demand.

Central Labor Union Wants to Know Their Attitude on Some Questions.

MANY QUESTIONS WILL BE ASKED

Of All Candidates For State Offices by Committee From Union. Report to be Made at Special Meeting Before Election.

There was an interesting and important meeting of the Central Labor union last evening. The chief feature of importance was political, but no partisanship whatever was shown. There was considerable discussion of the position of the various candidates on questions of importance to labor men, and finally a committee was appointed to wait on all the candidates within the next few days, and ask them certain questions in regard to their attitude.

All the delegates were asked to suggest questions that the labor union would like to know, and from the list suggested the committee will make its choice of those which are thought to be vital. These will include a statement of positions especially on the state nine-hour law, and on the various matters of labor legislation.

The committee will see all the candidates for state offices within the next few days, and a special meeting of the union will be called before the election to hear the report of the committee.

The rest of the business was largely of a routine nature. A report was received from the committee appointed to investigate the matter of a 5 o'clock whistle for the benefit of those who stop work at that hour. The committee had an interview with Mayor Cady on the matter, and he gave them encouragement that the whistle might be arranged. There are some possible difficulties in the way, but an effort will be made to secure the whistle.

A number of new delegates from the allied unions were seated. A credential committee was appointed to receive new delegates in the future.

SOCIALISTS WANT TOOLS.

Candidate Peare Speaks on Another Principle of His Party.

There was another socialist rally in St. Jean Baptiste hall last evening, at which the candidate for governor, George R. Peare, spoke. His attendance was not large. His address was in part as follows:

I shall run rapidly over a few points in private ownership, the means of production and distribution. Man in his infancy and nakedness is the weakest of the members of the animal kingdom, but by the use of tools he becomes the strongest. But while man's use of these tools and implements raised him the only tool being animal, to be monarch of the animal kingdom, he is hurried in to a condition more wretched than that of many of the lower animals by his right to hold the things he has produced. The very tools and implements that he has produced stand between him and his opportunity to gain a living.

The people can legislate the instruments of production and distribution into their hands by the same laws that take these things out of their hands and place them between them and their lives or chance to live. The Socialist party is the only party in this country or any other that is trying to bring the people to an appreciation of this.

As distasteful as the word capitalist may be, my statement may be the same, nevertheless there is given into the very elements of capitalism the elements of its destruction. Its greedy tendency to absorb more and more of the world's wealth in the hands of fewer and fewer will divorce from it all sympathy, and if there is not then a knowledge of a higher civilization, Socialism, then anarchy will reign carrying everything down in an awful crash.

Socialism proposes by appealing to the public intelligence, and not their passions, that the people own and control the inventions that they have introduced by their bounties, patent laws, etc.

The motives to produce the very best things we have today are Socialistic, our libraries, streets, bridges, fire departments, etc. They are not what they would be under a Socialist commonwealth, for you cannot expect, with the degrading hand of competition on every side, with the mad scramble for office, the near future will make this scramble the sharper, that these institutions should not be some limited. Some say that man is selfish to accept Socialism. As a matter of fact Socialism does not profess any generosity. On the contrary it proposes to give the most to the human family for the least exertion.

Do not vote for me until you know what you are doing it for. When you do that you will stay. We do not want floating votes. Workers, think and act now. Do not wait until terror reigns in our beautiful country.

F. J. BARBER'S AFFAIRS.

The financial stringency of Frank J. Barber, leather goods manufacturer, was briefly mentioned in the Transcript yesterday. C. J. Parkhurst, representing a majority of the creditors, has prepared a statement of Mr. Barber's financial condition which shows his assets to be $55,562.64, liabilities $51,893.73, surplus of assets over liabilities $13,668.91. He has offered creditors 25 per cent. of their claims in cash immediately, if all creditors consent to the arrangement, and the balance in full in four months. The creditors are willingly accepting this adjustment and the local creditors express themselves as well satisfied with the arrangement. It is believed that every creditor will consent and that all will be paid in full. Meanwhile Mr. Barber is out of town for absolute rest, but will return in a few days. W. M. Hodge and Archer H. Barber are in charge of his affairs and managing the factory during his absence. The business is a good one, the books show a substantial excess of assets over liabilities and it is believed that Mr. Barber will tide over the present stringency in good shape.

Does Advertising Pay?

Well, we should say yes, when backed up by goods that more than prove the statements made. That is just why our enameled ware sale has been such a tremendous success. Our enameled ware showed beyond a doubt that they were BARGAINS, EVERY ONE. Am sorry, but our Double Rice Boilers are all gone. Thursday afternoon we sold them as fast as we could do them up. But just look at this list below, goods marked for less than half their worth.

ENAMELED WARE SALE PRICE ONLY.

TEA POTS 10c. COFFEE POTS 25c. BASKETS 10c.
TEA KETTLES 30c. PRESERVING KETTLE 25c.
LIP SAUCE PANS 17c. PIECED NAUTIC PANS 18c.
OBLONG BAKERS OR ROASTERS 25c.

Prudent housekeepers can readily see that these goods are simply tremendous bargains. You could not duplicate these prices at the large department stores in the city.
